SMITH ON COTTON.

Jared G. Smith, director of the U. S. Agricultural Experiment Station, interviewed this morning on the subject of cotton growing in the Islands, had the following to say:

"It has been clearly demonstrated that cotton plants will grow in any place in the Islands and produce most excellent cotton. The question of whether or not it would be a paying industry is one that would have to be determined by the men who go into the business."

The Experiment Station people are just now engaged in getting their extensive library in shape in the office building.

BARRY AND PATTON

There is just a little feeling in the air between Patton and Barry, not much, but enough to make matters interesting when they get together. It will be remembered that the first time they met Barry disposed of Patton pretty easily. Since then Dave has apparently not worried any about prospects of Patton's winning a second combat. When the question of weight was brought up Barry is said to have consented to catch weights with the remark, "I'd take him on if he weighed a ton."

Patton resents this slight. He signed for the first contest at a week's notice, was in no shape for a contest and objected forcibly to the hard fighting that was indulged in on the ground that he was engaged merely to box a preliminary.

It is quite possible that Barry is underrating Patton dangerously. The latter is young and strong and is certainly cleverer than many think him, having been the amateur Brooklyn champion of his class. He is still fat despite his work with the hammer at his trade but he is fairly hard and two weeks' work should see him no mean opponent for Dave. The "wise ones" state freely that he is the hardest proposition Barry has taken on so far. Patton is willing for a long bout and suggested fifteen rounds of his own volition. The match is not definitely signed up yet but prospects are bright for a contest on March 26.

A full rehearsal of chorus and principals in Pirates of Penance will be held this evening in the makai pavilion of the Alexander Young Hotel when the first act will be taken up.
